Jack Landers is a 35 year old modern day sheriff in Oklahoma. He's famous, has a wonderful, breathtaking girlfriend and a devoted staff. His life is just about perfect...until a riding accident puts him in a coma and memories tell the reader what made him who he is.

Fairbury is a small town located in Central Illinois. It is 100 miles south of Chicago and 60 miles east of Peoria. It was founded in 1857 when the railroad first crossed Central Illinois. William T. Stackpole came from a prominent family in the Maine coastal city of Thomaston, Maine, on the St. Georges River. He was born in 1827. He grew up on the St. Georges River in Maine, where it emptied into the Atlantic Ocean. He was aware of the great success of the Erie Canal, built in 1821. These factors led to a life-long obsession with improving waterway shipping, including rivers and canals. His father moved the family to Pekin, Illinois. William moved to Fairbury shortly after it was founded in 1859. During his life, William was a gold prospector, pioneer, farmer, merchant, oil field worker, real estate sales person, inventor, writer, publisher, and visionary. It is said that William made and lost at least three different fortunes. He died penniless. William, his wife Jennie, and his daughter Anna, were buried in unmarked graves in Fairbury's Graceland Cemetery. The house that William built in Fairbury still exists today. It is hoped this book helps to inform current Fairbury residents about this very interesting man that was an important character in Fairbury's early history.
